INCREDIBLE! - BUT TRUE?

“When I was your age, I was always well behaved!”, says Granny.

“When I was your age, I built airplanes!”, says Pierre.

“When I was your age, I could speak to animals!”, says Mama.

Mr Werner from next door says nothing. I’m sure he was never a child anyway. Were all adults children once upon a time? And can you really believe everything they tell you about when they were young? When grown-ups talk about being little ...Great ideas for conversations with Dad, Grandma and any other grown-ups in your life. With humour and warmth, Katharina Grossmann-Hensel presents stories from “everyday” family life.

“But I’m not even tired!”

Anna is a night owl, but Emil is more of an early bird. And the sheep is interested in everything to do with sleeping. The three have lots to learn – about animals and people that sleep all day or fall asleep in the oddest places.

Who would have thought that there was so much to find out about sleeping? For instance: about sleepyheads and early risers, about fairy tales and figures of speech, about sleepwalking, snoring, beds, and so much more ...

This is the first non-fiction picture book to explore the topic of “falling asleep”.

The book uses humour to present curious facts from the animal world, other countries and world-famous fairy tales.

Includes a host of tips and tricks on falling asleep – from children, for children.

An angry dragon and a brave mouse

Frida, the pirate mouse, and Paul, the water dragon, are best friends. But one day, Paul gets out of the wrong side of the bed. As he trots off, miserably, to school, he kicks a stone out of his way and knocks down a mouse's tent. When Frida tells him to fix the damage he had caused, tempers flare and Paul gives Frida a shove. Resolute Frida stops Paul in his tracks and teaches him the best way to deal with anger: You need to release your anger, but should never direct it towards others. After Paul apologises to Frida, their day takes a turn for the better.

Anger affects every family and every nursery. But, when you start to feel angry, you can definitely do something about it.

Two strong, likeable characters learn to overcome anger together.

When Mozart dreams ...

Mozart's "Serenade No. 13 for Strings in G Major" is one of the world's best-known works. It inspired Heinz Janisch to write a magical, fantastically beautiful story. A white feather, sheet music, and moonlight are recounted by a weary Wolfgang Amadeus, who recalls his childhood as he sleeps: practicing piano under the eyes of his stern father, his long journeys in the post-coach and the concerts in Schönbrunn with Empress Maria Theresia. All this and much more can be heard in the little night music. And – who knows?– Perhaps Mozart even composed this music as he slept...?
