What Do Monsters Eat?

ueberreuter

annette betz

Publication Date: August 2018

Pages: 64

Age: 3+

All Rights Available

Constanze von Kitzing's children's books have won awards all over the world and have been published in 14 countries.

Johannes Büchs writes and presents "Sendung mit der Maus" and "Kann es Johannes?". He has been nominated for the Grimme Prize, won the German Nutrition Society (DGE) Prize for Journalism and received the Environmental Media Prize.

There's nothing monsters like more than munching!

And do you know what monsters love to eat most? Pears, apples and plums? No, they eat whole fruit trees in a single chomp, of course! Did you guess wrong? No problem! There are lots more monsters, more foods and even more puzzling fun in store! A picture book without words, but with even more hungry monsters!

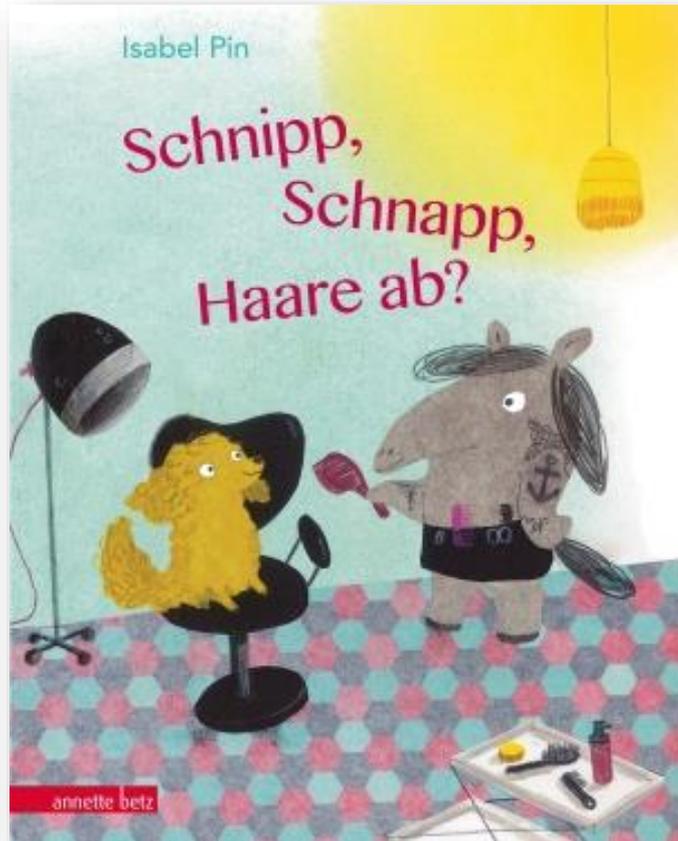

Designed by Johannes Büchs (KiKA, Sendung mit der Maus and many more) this is fun book for children, skilfully created by Constanze von Kitzing. This picture book helps to develop children's creativity and matching skills.

Wash, cut and dry, (no) thanks?!

Pina needs a haircut. But she doesn't want to go to the hairdressers! She'd rather carry on walking around wild and unkempt, and play with her friends. But the grownups insist. Luckily, Pina has an appointment with Johnny, the pony, who is the coolest hairdresser ever! Johnny tells the best stories and gives Pina one amazing (and crazy) new hairstyle after another. If only everyone could join the fun with this hairstyling party!

Annegert Fuchshuber (1940 – 1998) has created well over 50 picture books and children's books. She has been awarded numerous international prizes such as the German Children's Literature Prize and the Austrian Prize for Literature for Children and Teenagers.

There are so many of us. How many of you are there?

Peter and Paul are twins. Some people say that it isn't easy to look after two kids at once! But Father Lion has three children. And Mother Mole has no problem telling her four boys apart. And the Barn Owl? She's got five beautiful eggs in her nest...

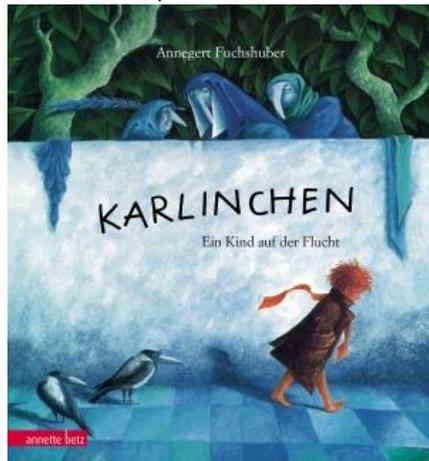

So, are 2, 3, 4, 5, 50 or more kids not enough, just right or far too many? A picture book with enchanting illustrations for small, large and very large families!

- A book for reading and counting
- Lion, bear and wild boar – how many babies do you have?

What's it like to be different?

There's a strange egg in the nest! Of course, Mrs. Blackbird notices it immediately. But what does one egg more or less matter, she thinks? So she looks after it like one of her own and...it hatches! But instead of a cuckoo, as everyone expected, it's a dragon that slips out of the egg. And he is so completely different from the rest of the Blackbird family, which causes all kinds of chaos. But when winter arrives, the little dragon has his big day.

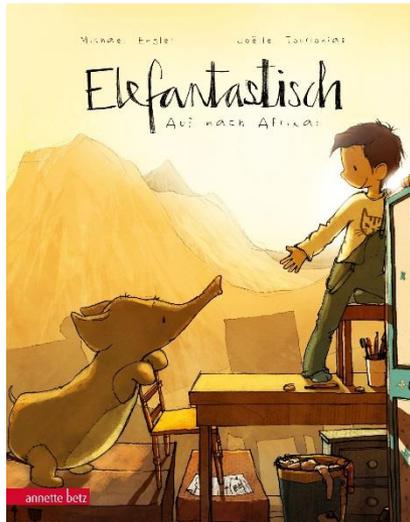

Who could have known just how beautiful it could be to be different?

Four seasons full of music!

Lisa lives with her family in a small village. She shares her home with her mother, Marie, her dad, Oscar, and her brother, Victor. Oh, and her dog. They all love listening to music together, and there's no music they love more than Antonio Vivaldi's music about the four seasons of nature. Because that's Mom's favourite. Together they listen to the sounds of nature and the sounds of musical instruments. And so a whole year passes with spring, summer, autumn and winter...

Age: 5+

All Rights Available

Susa Hämmerle has been a freelance author since 1990. She offers literary and influential adult and children's books and is frequently recognized. Her work is already translated into 13 languages.

Linchen lives with Grandpa Bass and her friends Marcello, Viola and Pia in a cosy, babbling mountain stream. In a stream? Exactly! The five are nimble trout who have all kinds of adventures in their mountain stream. They meet other animals who drink from the stream and hikers who cool their feet (and sometimes even fall) in the cold mountain water, and have to dodge dangerous anglers. When the mountain stream splashes wildly after a rainy day, Linchen throws caution to the wind and plays catch with her friends. And so their greatest adventure begins...

Susa Hämmerle tells an amusing story based on Schubert's world-famous pieces, »The Trout« and »The Trout Quintet«.

Tragically beautiful – music that tugs the heart strings!

»Thank's to Donasino, Giacomo Puccini's ›La Bohème‹ is my favourite opera in the whole world ...« A little boy makes friends with the donkey Donasino, who performs the most amazing tricks in the circus. One day, some people from the opera house come to the circus in search of a donkey. They're quite desperate! They need a donkey for their next performance of ›La Bohème‹. And who gets the job of looking after the donkey during the performance? Donasino's best friend, the little boy. From his vantage point backstage, he gets to experience the moving, highly-emotional love story of Mimi and Rodolfo. What a night! To be able to see such a beautiful opera, what could be better?

Should you have any information about him, please let us know – you might help to stop strange incidents from occurring.

Magnus Myst calls himself a "magician" – and we all know that magicians don't exist.

Save yourself – if you can! It's back...

... and it's brought the most disturbing secret in the world with it! But before readers can unravel the earth-shattering mystery, there are a few challenges they need to complete to prove that they're not just spies. From the very first page, one thing is absolutely clear: You can't trust anyone anymore. Especially not Liebmarie, the most annoying goody-two-shoes in the world. It's not just that she believes everything her parents tell her. No, it's that she sabotages everything the Little Bad Book does to reveal the most terrifying secret in the world. When the Little Bad Book tries to expose the dreadful truth, she hides everything it says behind pink, glittery hearts and unicorns. Only with the reader's help can the Little Bad Book get rid of Liebmarie, before shedding light in the darkness and revealing the greatest secret the world has (n)ever known!

At last: the sequel to the Spiegel Bestseller "The Little Bad Book"

Nicodemus Faust and the House of 100 keys

Hendrik Lambertus lives with his family in Bremen and is well known for his fantasy literature. “Nicodemus Faust” is his first book for children.

- An exciting fantasy about people who turn into animals
- A thrilling story about courage, friendship and sticking together, whatever happens
- Atmospheric, full-page illustrations by a talented newcomer

The secret of the mysterious old villa

Nicodemus Faust is ten years old and hates the fact that he has to spend his holidays in a dusty old villa with his cranky, old Uncle Erasmus. But once he’s there, things turn out to be far more exciting than he could ever have imagined: In the garden, Nicodemus spots a leopard walking about on its hind legs, just like a person; the dragon ring he finds makes doors open as if by magic; and from a room at the back of the villa, he hears a cry for help that seems to be coming from inside a locked chest. Suddenly, a mysterious man in a leather jacket with a leopard skin collar appears at the front door asking about an antique wooden figurine. Before he knows it, Nicodemus is caught up in the greatest adventure of his life! What is the dark secret buried deep in this ancient house?

Funny and original: Turns classics on their heads

You'll never find Oskar, Johanna or Maya playing in the park or running around on the football pitch. They meet up every day in the library. They are working their way through all the books on the shelves: books about horses, fantasy novels, books for boys and girls, they don't care. All they care about is that each book should have as many pages as possible and be as exciting as possible. But they've never seen a book like the one Ms. Müller-Liebelein gives them one day. It lets them jump right into any one of its stories. The three friends suddenly find themselves in medieval England, where books are rare indeed and reading is almost an artform. They soon bump into none other than Robin Hood, and it looks as if he could do with their help...

A love letter to libraries and all of the books that have ever inspired us.

The incredible life of François Vidocq

Walter Hansen has written numerous biographies, novels and non-fiction books. His books have been translated into many languages and have won numerous prizes, including several awards from the German Academy for Children’s and Youth Literature. He lives in Munich.

The world’s very first detective

It’s 1809 and Paris is a hotbed of murder and crime. There’s only one thing that sets the police apart: their pompous uniforms. They certainly aren’t solving much crime. At least, not until a thief came along and revolutionised police work – François Vidocq. A poor baker’s son, driven by misfortune into the depths of the city’s criminal underworld. He has already escaped from prison twenty-five times. And now, for the twenty-sixth time, he once again manages to break out. This time with help from the police. François has finally realised what his true calling is: fighting the underworld with his own means. François Vidocq’s methods not only revolutionised police work in France, but throughout the world. His “Sûreté” became a role model for Scotland Yard and the FBI. François himself was the real-life inspiration for fictional master detectives like Sherlock Holmes. This book tells the incredible true story of his amazing life.

From thief to detective with an incredible career:

The real-life inspiration for Sherlock Holmes

Covert investigations, securing evidence at crime scenes, psychological profiling and interrogations – the same methods the CIA, FBI and Scotland Yard still use today
