Tales from a Divided City

An Anthology of the Greatest Writing about Nicosia

Edited by Bahriye Kemal, et al.

A collection of prose, poetry and memoir by 35 Cypriot authors, from the world's last divided capital city.

Since 1963 Nicosia, the capital of Cyprus, has been split by a militarized border. In Tales from a Divided City, writers from all sides of the Cyprus divide come together to write the past, present and future of their city. Cypriot-Greeks coexist alongside Cypriot-Turks, the north with the south, city with countryside, dominant voices and the marginalised. These writers move beyond Cyprus to other places that share the country's colonial history, taking in out-of-sync clocks, stray cats and bus rides to unfamiliar suburban conclusions.

Together, these writers carefully bring together the fragments that make a whole picture of Nicosia, the world's last divided capital city.

'She had her breakfast at the harbour frequented by barbaric sailors, her lunch in a faithful settlement of idolators, and her dinner was served in a civilised environment, in another Walled City.'

Memoirs of a Woman Doctor

Nawal El Saadawi

Bestselling novel from Egypt's foremost feminist and award-winning author

SOLD
City Lights (North America)

March 2019
Literature
£8.99 PB 128pp

A young Egyptian woman clashes with her traditional family when she chooses a career in medicine. Rather than submit to an arranged marriage and motherhood, she cuts her hair short and works fiercely to realise her dreams. At medical school, she begins to understand the mysteries of the human body. After years denying her own desires, the doctor begins a series of love affairs that allow her to explore her sexuality – on her own terms.

Written in her twenties when Nawal El Saadawi was studying in Cairo, Memoirs of a Woman Doctor is the searing coming-of-age story of a woman striving for freedom in a male-dominated world. This classic feminist novel remains as thought-provoking today as when it was first published.

‘The leading spokeswoman on the status of women in the Arab world.’ The Guardian

‘Nawal El Saadawi writes with directness and passion.’ New York Times

Nawal El Saadawi is one of the world’s most influential feminist writers and activists. She is founder and president of the Arab Women’s Solidarity Association and cofounder of the Arab Association for Human Rights. Her novels, short stories and plays have been translated into over thirty languages, and are taught at universities worldwide. They include Two Women in One, Zeina, The Fall of the Imam and Love in the Kingdom of Oil

Love in the Kingdom of Oil

Nawal El Saadawi

A novel following one woman's brave quest for freedom in a patriarchal society

A woman disappears without a trace. Nobody, including the police commissioner investigating the case, can understand how a woman could simply walk away, leaving husband and home behind. After all, in the Kingdom of Oil where His Majesty reigns supreme, no woman has ever dared disobey the command of men.

When the woman finally reappears, there is a blurring between the men in her life. She leaves one to marry another, then returns to her first husband who has since taken a new wife in a series of dream-like scenarios. She is trapped in a man-made web, unable to escape from a male figure who is always half-asleep and who continually fills urns that she must carry.

Surreal and satirical, Love in the Kingdom of Oil is a startling reflection on the limits of female freedom in a society unable and unwilling to shrug off the multiple faces of patriarchy.

'The most influential feminist thinker in the Arab world over the past half-century.' Financial Times

'I think her life has been one long death threat. At a time when nobody else was talking, she spoke the unspeakable.' Margaret Atwood, BBC Imagine

A Map of Absence

An Anthology of Palestinian Writing on the Nakba

Edited by Atef Alshaer

A seminal collection of writings on the Nakba by major and emerging Palestinian writers

World Rights available

May 2019
Literature / Anthologies
£16.99 PB 320pp

The Nakba, or catastrophe, of 1948 saw hundreds of thousands of Palestinians dispossessed from their land to create the state of Israel, producing a refugee crisis that is still ongoing today. This trauma is a central theme in much of the writing from Palestine, whose writers have been the vanguard of identity and representation of their people, rendering their depths, fears, longings and hopes in a variety of discourses and styles.

This unique collection brings together the finest poetry and prose on the Nakba by Palestinian writers over the last seventy years, for the first time. Covering three critical periods (pre-Nakba, post-Nakba and post-Oslo Accords), it includes translated excerpts of poems, novels, short stories and memoirs by major authors such as Mahmoud Darwish, Samira Azzam, Fadwa Tuqan and Edward Said, as well as by emerging Palestinian writers.

This is an ideal book both for lovers of world literature and for those seeking a more intimate understanding of the conflict.

Atef Alshaer is a lecturer in Arabic Studies at the University of Westminster. His other publications include Poetry and Politics in the Modern Arab World and Love and Poetry in the Middle East (forthcoming).

Sea of Troubles

The European Conquest of the Islamic Mediterranean, c.1750–1918

Ian Rutledge

A lively, sweeping account of how a once great Islamic civilisation was defeated by European powers

In the second half of the eighteenth century, approximately three quarters of the Mediterranean coastline and its hinterlands were controlled by a vast Islamic power, the centuries-old Ottoman Empire. However, by the end of the First World War in November 1918, this great civilisation – once regarded by Christian Europe with awe and fear – had been completely subjugated, its territories occupied by European powers.

The history of imperialism in the Mediterranean involves not one but six European powers – Britain, France, Italy, Spain, Austria-Hungary and Russia – jostling for control of the trade, lands and wealth of those they saw as the existential ‘other’. The competition between these states made their conquest of the Islamic Mediterranean a far more difficult and extended task than they encountered elsewhere in the world. Yet, as new contenders entered the contest, and as the rivalries in the Mediterranean intensified in the early twentieth century, events would spiral out of control as the continent headed towards the First World War.

Seven years after the Arab uprisings, the social situation has deteriorated across the Middle East and North Africa. Political, economic and personal insecurities have expanded and, against a backdrop of escalating armed conflicts and disintegrating state structures, many have been forced from their homes, creating millions of internally displaced persons and refugees. Young people are often the ones hit hardest by the turmoil. How do they cope with these ongoing uncertainties, and what drives them to pursue their own dreams, in spite of these hardships?

In 2016 and 2017, an international interdisciplinary team of researchers sought answers to these questions. They conducted interviews with 9,000 young people aged 16–30 from Bahrain, Egypt, Jordan, Lebanon, Morocco, Palestine, Syria, Tunisia and Yemen. Given how rapidly events have moved in the Middle East and North Africa, their findings, which are drawn together in this volume, are in many regards unexpected.

Nabil Anani

Palestine, Land and People

Foreword by Mourid Barghouti

Beautifully produced monograph by a key founder of the contemporary Palestinian art movement; bringing together over 150 of his major works

Nabil Anani is one of the most prominent Palestinian artists working today. A painter, ceramicist and sculptor, he has built an impressive catalogue of outstanding, innovative and unique art over the past four decades, pioneering the use of local media such as leather, henna, natural dyes, papier-mâché, wood, beads and copper.

Anani's development as an artist has run in parallel with major events in recent Palestinian history. His artistic vision restores and celebrates a denied and often-forgotten reality, his work re-igniting memory.

Bringing together over 150 of the pioneering artist's works from 1976–2016, as well as essays from leading experts in contemporary Middle Eastern art, this monograph is essential for the expert and enlightening for the general reader.

Khatt

Egypt's Calligraphic Landscape

Basma Hamdy and Noha Zayed

Including over 200 colour photographs, this is a beautifully produced source-book, vital for designers, artists and calligraphy enthusiasts

Egyptian cities and villages abound with an enormous wealth of khatt, or calligraphic script, ranging from casual scrawls and scribbles to elaborately-painted colourful murals. These historical and contemporary versions of urban lettering, varying in surface, medium and technique, adorn mosques, shop-fronts, houses, trucks, boats, schools, tuk-tuks and walls. They are records of human existence, documenting expressions of hope, fears, dreams and anxieties.

Featuring beautiful, unique examples of these written expressions, Khatt is an extensive visual documentation of the found typography and calligraphy in Egypt, a calligraphy hub that possesses a rich tradition of education and production in the field. This timely volume records the traditional craftsmanship of hand-painted calligraphy, which is fast disappearing because of the digitisation of the Arabic script.

Arabicity

Four Decades of Contemporary Arab Creativity

Edited by Rose Issa

Beautifully produced collection of over 200 artworks by internationally renowned Middle Eastern artists, whose ground-breaking works reflect the pulse of region

Arabicity reflects on four decades of the aesthetic, conceptual and socio-political concerns of contemporary Arab artists. Beautifully produced, it features over 200 artworks by fifty Arab artists including Bahia Shehab, Ayman Baalbaki, Hassan Hajjaj and Raeda Saadeh, who explore their cultural heritage, and themes such as memory, destruction, and conflict, with, humour, visual poetry and great warmth.

Whether through video art, painting, photography or installation, these artists challenge the confines of their identity, resisting stereotyping and reshaping the parameters of their cultural traditions. In their diverse media and subject matter, their works reflect the pulse of the region. In chaos they discover what endures.

Lebanon's wine heritage dates back thousands of years. In the second millennium BC, wine made and traded by the Phoenicians was regarded as the finest in the world. The Romans loved it so much they built a temple to Bacchus in the Beqaa Valley. From the dawn of time until the present day, despite regional turmoil, civil conflicts and religious intolerance, Lebanon has consistently produced world-class wines.

Michael Karam and Norbert Schiller take us on a journey through the vineyards of Lebanon, telling the story of its wine, as well as that of its people and their traditions. Lavishly illustrated, Lebanese Wine includes profiles of the fifty wineries operating in the country today – their produce, grapes, and techniques – as well as interviews with the most exciting winemakers. At once a guide and cultural history, this tribute to one of the world's oldest winemaking regions is an invaluable reference for wine lovers, travellers and casual readers alike.

Michael Karam is a journalist, wine writer and documentary maker. His books include Wines of Lebanon, which won the Gourmand Award for Best New World Wine Book Arak and Mezze. Norbert Schiller has lived and worked as a news photographer in the Middle East and Africa for nearly three decades, working for the Associated Press, Agence France Presse, New York Times, and Der Spiegel, among others.

Wally Funk's Race for Space

The Extraordinary Story of a Female Aviation Pioneer

Sue Nelson

The inspirational story of a female pilot who led the way for women in space, written by an award-winning journalist

In 1961, Wally Funk was among the Mercury 13, the first group of American pilots to pass the Women in Space programme. Wally sailed through a series of rigorous physical and mental tests, her scores beating many of the male candidates', including those of John Glenn, the first American in orbit. But just one week before she was due to enter the final phase of training, the programme was abruptly cancelled. A combination of politics and prejudice meant that none of the women ever flew into space. Undeterred, Wally went on to become one of America's first female aviation inspectors and civilian flight instructors, though her dream of making it into space never dimmed.

In this offbeat odyssey, journalist and fellow space buff Sue Nelson travels with Wally, now approaching her eightieth birthday, as she races to make her giant leap – before it's too late. Set against the backdrop of international space travel and covering their travels across the United States and Europe, this is a uniquely intimate and entertaining portrait of an aviation trailblazer.

'An extraordinary, quirky book ... A global Thelma and Louise-style adventure ... It's a great story, and it throws fascinating light on the story of female space travel.' Daily Mail Book of the Week

Sue Nelson is a journalist and broadcaster. She produces documentaries for BBC Radio and makes short films on science and space. Her award-winning 2016 documentary 'Women with the Right Stuff', on the history of women in space, was one of BBC World Service's most-listened-to podcasts.

Arab women poets have been around since the earliest times, yet their diwans (collected poems) were not given the same consideration as their male counterparts, even though they were often princesses, noblewomen or saints.

This unique collection brings together the great female poets of the Jahiliyya (pre-Islamic era) to the Andalusian periods, showcasing their significant contribution to the literary tradition. Celebrating feminine wit and desire, the poems are excursions into these women's vibrant worlds whose humanity has been suppressed for centuries by religious and political bigotry.

Ever larger numbers of people are starting to learn Arabic, while even more have some contact with the Arab world. Anyone who wishes to learn the language faces the hitherto formidable initial problem: the alphabet.

This book proceeds step by step through all the letters of the Arabic alphabet, showing the sounds they stand for and how they are combined into words. Nothing essential is left out, but no unnecessary complications are added. Readers will find that progress is rapid and will be surprised at the relative ease with which they master the first steps in learning this increasingly important world language.

The Arabic Alphabet belongs on the desk of every student of the language, in the luggage of every visitor to the Middle East, in the briefcases of all business people with Arab clients and in the back pocket of all employees of British or American companies working in Arab countries.

‘Demonstrates the letters in easy-to-follow, stroke-by-stroke diagrams. Excellent value.’ Library Journal

Nicholas Awde was born in London in 1961 and spent much of his childhood in Africa. He studied Arabic at London University. Putros Samano was born in Iraq in 1953. Since 1974 he has lived in Britain, where he studied Arabic and Arabic-English translation and now works as a translator and interpreter.

Desert Songs of the Night

So Many Islands

Stories from the Caribbean, Mediterranean, Indian and Pacific Oceans

Edited by Nicholas Laughlin

A unique collection by strong international voices, with an introduction by Man Booker winner Marlon James

So Many Islands breaks out bold new writing from the distant shores of countries in the Caribbean, Mediterranean, Indian and Pacific Oceans. Here you will find poems about revolution and protest; you will be transported to Marakei, ‘the women’s island’, and join the battle to save a beached whale.

Alongside family politics, So Many Islands also tackles nuclear testing and climate change – global issues that are close to the heart of these precariously poised communities.

Giving voice to their challenges and triumphs, these writers create a vibrant portrait of what it is like to live and love on the small islands they call home. Readers everywhere will find universal connections with their words and worlds.

A Concise History of Sunnis and Shi'is

John McHugo

An essential guide to understanding the most important schism in the Muslim world

The 1400-year-old schism between Sunnis and Shi'is has rarely been as toxic as it is today, feeding wars and communal strife in Syria and Yemen, with tensions between Saudi Arabia and Iran escalating. In this richly layered and engrossing account, John McHugo reveals how this great divide occurred. Charting the story of Islam from the lifetime of the Prophet Muhammad to the present day, he describes the conflicts that raged over the succession to the Prophet, how Sunnism and Shi'ism evolved as different sects during the Abbasid caliphate, and how the rivalry between the empires of the Sunni Ottomans and Shi'i Safavids contrived to ensure that the split would continue into modern times. Now its full, destructive force has been brought out by the struggle between Saudi Arabia and Iran for the soul of the Muslim world.

'An important corrective ... provides the reader with a clear-headed appraisal of the modern Middle East.' Times Literary Supplement

Syria

A Recent History

John McHugo

Timely and highly readable, account covering 100 years of Syrian history from the First World War to the present

Syria's descent into chaos since 2011 has claimed hundreds of thousands of lives, while more than nine million people have fled their homes. In this timely account, John McHugo charts the history of Syria from the First World War to the present and considers why Syria's foundations as a nation have proved so fragile. He examines the country's thwarted attempts at independence under French rule before turning to more recent events: two generations of rule by the Assad family, sectarian tensions, the pressures that turned an aborted revolution into a proxy war, and the appearance of ISIS. As the conflict in Syria rages on, McHugo provides a rare and authoritative guide to a complex nation that demands our attention.

The Husayni family of Jerusalem dominated Palestinian history for 250 years, from the Ottoman times through to the end of the British Mandate. At the height of the family's political influence, positions in Jerusalem could only be obtained through its power base.

In this compelling political biography, Ilan Pappé traces the rise of the Husaynis from a provincial Ottoman elite clan into the leadership of the Palestinian national movement in the twentieth century. In telling their story, Pappé highlights the continuous urban history of Jerusalem and Palestine. Shedding new light on crucial events such as the invasion of Palestine by Napoleon, the decline of the Ottoman Empire, World War I and the advent of Zionism, this remarkable account provides an unforgettable picture of the Palestinian tragedy in its entirety.

The Balkans in the Gaze of Western Travellers

Božidar Jezernik

A fascinating account of how West European travellers have exoticised the Balkans for 400 years

Combining witty commentary with meticulous research, and abounding in historical and cultural detail, Jezernik reveals how the Balkans have been perceived by Western European travellers and experts from the mid-sixteenth to the late twentieth century.

The book's rich store of source material includes citations from naturalists, geographers, historians and social scientists. Exploring over a thousand first-hand reports and comparing narratives spanning nearly 500 years, the author demonstrates that the act of observing other people in their environment mirrors the observer's own culture and mentality.

'There are journalists who still write about the barbaric nature of those misunderstood [Balkan] countries. Jezernik's measured comments on the views of their blinkered predecessors ought to begin the process of their enlightenment.'

Since emerging as a settlement in the seventh century, Dubrovnik has faced Venetian aggressors, Ottoman plotters, a terrible earthquake in 1667 and, finally, the will of Napoleon. In 1991–92 the city survived the besieging Yugoslav army, which heavily damaged but did not destroy its cultural heritage.

This book is a comprehensive history of Dubrovnik's progress over twelve centuries of European development, encompassing arts, architecture, social and economic changes, politics and the trauma of war.

'Detailed, scholarly and eminently readable, Dubrovnik is a triumph of book production. This is a splendid volume.' Literary Review

'Learned, fluently written and lavishly illustrated.' Sunday Telegraph

'There are few introductions to the city's past available ... Harris's splendid study meets this need admirably.' Times Literary Supplement

Robin Harris worked in various political and governmental capacities in the 1970s and 1980s. He is now a journalist who focuses on foreign affairs and politics, and writes extensively on the Balkans.

The Janissaries

Godfrey Goodwin

The only account of one of the most powerful groups in Europe between the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries

From the fifteenth to the sixteenth century, the janissaries were the scourge of Europe. With their martial music, their muskets and their drilled march, it seemed that no one could withstand them. Their loyalty to their corps was infinite as the Ottomans conquered the Balkans as far as the Danube, and Syria, Egypt and Iraq. They set up semi-independent states along the North African coast and even fought at sea. Their political power was such that even sultans trembled.

Who were they? Why were they an elite? Why did they decline and what was their end? These are some of the questions which this book attempts to answer. It is the story of extraordinary personalities in both victory and defeat.

‘Goodwin has done so much in his scholarly career to introduce a wide audience to Ottoman culture.’ Financial Times

Godfrey Goodwin (d. 2005) was a historian and scholar. He taught art and architectural history at the University of the Bosphorus from 1957 to 1968 and is the author of several further authoritative works, including Sinan: Ottoman Architecture and its Values Today, and The Private World of Ottoman Women, also published by Saqi Books. He was also a former director and librarian of the Royal Asiatic Society.

The Private World of Ottoman Women

Godfrey Goodwin

A fascinating look at the lives of women from all walks of society under Ottoman rule.

Recovering the oft-neglected role of women in Ottoman high society and power politics, this book brings to life the women who made their mark in a male domain. Though historical records tend to favour the glitter of palaces over the trials of daily life, Goodwin also reconstructs ordinary women's domestic toil.

As the Ottoman Empire first expanded and then shrank, women travelled its width and breadth whether out of necessity or merely for pleasure. Some women owned slaves while others suffered the misfortune of being enslaved. Goodwin examines the laws which governed women's lives from the harem to the humblest tasks.

This perceptive study of Ottoman life culminates with the nineteenth century and explores the advent of modernity and its impact on women at a time of imperial decline.

Yemen in Crisis

Autocracy, Neo-Liberalism and the Disintegration of a State

Helen Lackner

An indispensable guide to understanding the dramatic turn of events in the country since 2011

Yemen is in the grip of its most severe crisis in years. Fuelled by Arab and Western intervention, the civil war has quickly escalated, resulting in thousands killed and millions close to starvation. Suffering from a collapsed economy, the people of Yemen face a desperate choice between the Huthi rebels allied with ex-President Saleh on the one side and the internationally recognised government propped up by the Saudi-led coalition and Western arms on the other.

In this invaluable analysis, Helen Lackner uncovers the roots of the social and political conflicts that threaten the very survival of the state and its people. She reveals the corruption of the country's US-backed autocratic regime, as well as its failure to address national impoverishment and to plan an equitable economy for Yemen's growing population.

'An outstanding book ... Written with compassion and insight, Lackner confirms her standing as the foremost authority on Yemeni politics at work today.' Eugene Rogan

Gilbert Achcar is Professor of Development Studies and International Relations at the School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London. His publications include The Clash of Barbarisms, The Arabs and the Holocaust and Perilous Power with Noam Chomsky.

Since the first wave of uprisings in 2011, the euphoria of the “Arab Spring” has given way to the gloom of backlash, clashes between rival counter-revolutionary forces, and a descent into mayhem and war.

Focusing on Syria and Egypt, Gilbert Achcar analyzes the factors of the regional relapse: the resilience of the old regimes, the power of religious reactionary forces, the exceptional number of rival international and regional supports of both reactionary camps, and the shortcomings of progressive forces.

Drawing on a unique combination of scholarly and political knowledge of the Arab region, Achcar argues that, short of radical social change, the region will not achieve stability any time soon.

‘One of the best analysts of the contemporary Arab world.’ Le Monde

‘A sobering yet generous account of the Arab people’s fight for true liberation and the lessons that have been learned from that struggle.’

Marxism, Orientalism, Cosmopolitanism

Gilbert Achcar

An original Marxist appraisal of cosmopolitanism, religion and politics of Said's Orientalism by foremost scholar of politics in the MENA region

In this collection of essays, Gilbert Achcar examines the controversial relationship of Marxism to religion, to Orientalism and its critique by Edward Said, and to the concept of cosmopolitanism.

A compelling range of issues is discussed within these pages, including a comparative assessment of Christian liberation theology and Islamic fundamentalism; "Orientalism in reverse", which can take the form of an apology for Islamic fundamentalism; the evolution of Marx's appraisal of non-Western societies; and the vagaries of "cosmopolitanism" up to our present era of globalisation.

Erudite and incisive, these essays provide a major contribution to the critical discussion of Marxism, orientalism and cosmopolitanism, and illuminate the relationships between all three.

‘The people want ...’: the first part of the slogan chanted by millions of Arab protestors since 2011 revealed a long-repressed craving for democracy. But huge social and economic problems were also laid bare by the protesters’ demands. Although Islamist parties did not initiate the protest movement, they have benefitted the most from the power vacuum that followed the ousting of the rulers in Tunisia, Egypt, Libya and Yemen.

With incisive and invaluable insight, Achcar investigates why the liberals and the Left failed to capitalise on the initial momentum and assesses whether the Islamist parties will be able to steer their countries out of their present crisis.

‘A detailed and searching account of the “Arab Spring.”’ Malise Ruthven, New York Review of Books

‘An in-depth and critical reading of the Arab uprisings that will undoubtedly enrich Middle Eastern Studies libraries.’ Bustan: The Middle East Book Review

Return to the Shadows

The Muslim Brotherhood and An-Nahda since the Arab Spring

Alison Pargeter

An analysis of the Muslim Brotherhood and the consequences of its decline on both the region and the Islamist political project

The Arab Spring heralded a profound shift in the Middle East, bringing to power Islamist movements which had previously been operating in the shadows. The Muslim Brotherhood stormed to victory in Egypt and emerged as a key player in Libya's nascent political arena. Meanwhile, An-Nahda found itself catapulted into power as the head of Tunisia's coalition government. For a while, it looked as though the region was entering the dawn of a new Islamist age.

But navigating their respective countries through difficult and painful transitions ultimately proved too challenging for these forces. Alison Pargeter expertly charts the Islamists' ascent and subsequent fall from power. Based on extensive research and interviews with high ranking members of the Brotherhood and An-Nahda, Pargeter offers a comparative analysis of the movement since the Arab Spring.

Ayse Onal has won many awards for her work as a journalist, including the Courage in Journalism Award, and has reported on Turkish politics, organised crime and conflicts in the Middle East. She has been blacklisted by the government, threatened by Islamic fundamentalists, placed on death lists, arrested and shot. She lives in Istanbul.

Honour killing persists across the Middle East, where regimes refrain from tackling primitive traditions for fear of sparking unrest.

Ayse Onal interviewed imprisoned men in Turkey convicted of killing their mothers, sisters and daughters. The result is a revealing and ultimately tragic account of ruined lives – both the victims' and the killers' – in a country where state and religion conspire to hush up the killing of hundreds of women every year.

'Ayse Onal has done an immense service by revealing what it is like to live in an honour-based society and the terrible cost, not just to the women who are beaten and eventually killed, but to the perpetrators and other relatives.' Joan Smith

'This is a book that demands to be read ... Onal's bravery is remarkable. She lives in fear for her life. But her writing shows no fear.' Guardian

'Honour Killing is a powerful read and I was, by turn, horrified and intensely moved.' Tribune Magazine

This newly updated and beautifully illustrated classic is a celebration of the female dancers of the Arab world.

Focusing on the nineteenth century onwards, Wendy Buonaventura reveals how this ancient art was influenced by Western ideas about art and entertainment, and in turn exerted a powerful hold on the Western imagination.

In the heyday of Orientalism, it inspired writers and artists such as Flaubert, Jean-Léon Gérôme and Mata Hari. Often based on common fantasies of Middle-Eastern women, this obsession nevertheless produced wonderfully evocative images.

Buonaventura also documents the impact the genre had on fashion, theatre and film at the turn of the century, and explores present and future trends in Arabic dance.
